Subject: Re: Porter Cable 690 and some HUEVOS!
Posted by lon on Thu, 27 May 2004 05:37:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm appreciative of all who have replied to this. But myprogress is pretty slow. I suppose one of the reasons everything goes so slow is:I have one set of flat packs and any misstep just aboutkills the project and whatever investment in materialsand tools. One handy part of having a 3" hole cutter is it can beused for the front (speaker cutout) and the back (terminalcups are 3" too.) And so it goes. I should be rabettingthe baffles for flush mount as well. It is considered arequirement of the design. And not much play for screw mounting those little 3" Tangbands. I am doing a practicemount for all these things: an open baffle that can also be usedfor break-in using the technique of running white noisethrough the speaks at high volume in a sealed and dampedcontainer.