I am full of quotations today. That is the title of an essay by Robert Benchley. It always comes to mind when I have to assemble something. Today it was a Black and Decker Workmate... one of the junior workmates. I wanted to see how difficult it was to do a small one. It was the first step that had me scratching my head the most. It's together but I don't have the right sort of hex driver to get everything tightened down. I think I know a guy with some. Also bought a spin saw... a budget one ...so I'll see what I can do with that. No routers on deal... even at Fathers Day.
