
Subject: Need help with Polyurathane.

Posted by James W. Johnson on Tue, 20 Jul 2004 13:47:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The guy at Lowe's suggested I use a low nap mohair roller....boy was he wrong. After applying the first coat I hurried as fast as I could to try and undo the bubbly mess the roller made with a brush. I smoothed it out and scraped off as much excess poly as I could. It turned out better than I expected but still the coat was too thick. How can I fix this? Will over sanding the poly mess up anything for further coats? I am using Minwax fast drying satin. Please help! They sure look good from 2' and camera shots though. :D... but that won't do, I need close inspection good looks to some degree.
