My reason for asking is my confusion about the sorts of setups made at a DIY event. Not many hobbyists are building CD players for instance. Many have made turntables. At a DIY show do the builders of product which is discussed in the forums here then exhibit their latest creations looking toward acceptance and sale in the marketplace? For this a yes or no will do. Or should a DIY show feature one-off builds by hobbyists exclusively? This would apply to SET amps, speakers, pre-sets. And do kits count?
