Subject: Re: An uncraftsman question-- Cabinet grade plywood
Posted by Bill Epstein on Tue, 17 Oct 2006 00:33:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Yup.Every biggish city has a distributor or three that sells to cabinet shops. They generally have laminates, cabinet hardware, paper-backed veneer and hardwood plywood. GP and Weyerhauser are just 2 of the names that have Walnut and oak for around $90, cherry and mahogany a bit more and even exotics. I bought 'Chinese Walnut' out of Columbus from DSI for $52 a sheeet which is quite nice.Good quality hardwood plywood and iron-on veneer edge-banding make using solid wood a wste of time and resources, at least for large speakers.