

---

Subject: Re: An uncraftsman question-- Cabinet grade plywood

Posted by lon on Tue, 17 Oct 2006 15:37:55 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Thanks for the replies. I just figured that cabinet grade (cheapo stuff from HD) might have less of the annoying "there's some plywood" figuring in the panels. One thing I found that should be more stable is those glued up panels at Menards (in the Midwest USA). They look like butcher block so I suppose it depends on how Dutchy your decor is.

---