Subject: Anyone using biscuits when building speakers? Posted by dbishopbliss on Wed, 15 Aug 2007 11:20:38 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

As I have been looking around it seems that everyone uses butt-joints for their enclosures. The manager at my local woodworking shop has encouraged me to use biscuits and tongue & groove joints. I must say that glue up is very easy in comparison to my earlier attempts at butt-joints. Am I missing something or is it that they are so much more work that people don't bother?
