Unfortunately, I have just 2-3 EF86, of different makers, of course, and didn't try DIY with them, they are now (almost) scarce and expensive. But yesterday I get another 15 pcs of C3g and 4 pcs D3a (another 4 was broken ). Nice looking projects, I'm glad when I "found" someone who actually built something. Probably you know this, but besides many old tube books on-line, there is a big pentode test on Pete Millett's DIY pages. I like those cheap and "odd" tubes...
