You and I have been friends a long time, so I tend to want to look the other way, but we can't be seen as playing favorites. When I offered Brad's services, I talked to him about it and made it clear that it would have to be at cost. The plans would be available to everyone, whether they bought anything or not. This kind of thing brings goodwill, and that's good for everyone.To tell the truth, it raised my eyebrows a bit to see you jump in and make a second offer to make parts. It's definitely a grey area, since you make and sell horns like these. Brad is not directly involved with the audio industry, so he could not commercialize the project. He would have no desire to make Smith horns for sale, but you might. So that poses a potential problem. We'll need to look into this and see how it should be handled.
