MB, I ain't not horn designer. Just following the plans from audioheritage. My post above was how I would take the dimensions from that plan and lay it out on the board. Not everybody has a CNC machine, so some of us have to do things the old fashion way, with trammels (compasses) and rulers. In my experience, I've found it difficult to accurately apply angles on a board. Much more accurate to use a bit of tri and layout with x/y coordinates. I just translated the dimensions from the plan to the x/y coordinates.gar.
