I understand all too well the need to finance the next expression of endless hi-fi lust, but I want to offer you a thought about something I've learned over the past couple of years -As broke as I think I may be at any one point, I'm usually feeling more guilty about spending money on another piece of gear than I am actually in financial straits, though satisfaction may have to be delayed momentarily. I have sold too much stuff trying to assuage my guilt when I should have hung on to it for the future. I'm trying very hard not to do that anymore because I've regretted it and/or had to repurchase stuff too many times. It's pretty, you did a nice job, keep it.
