Damn, but it seems that just when everything is all set to go, along comes the complications: Missing one piece of veneer set me back one day, 2 year old with ear infection set me back another so there goes the week-end! Now I have to try to squeeze in the last cabinet veneering into lunch breaks which is next to impossible and/or after work which, with my wife home with a super cranky sick kid or two seems almost as unlikely for a few more days. I can't wait!
