
Subject: for seekers of the mighty CH3

Posted by ToFo on Fri, 08 Mar 2002 01:08:31 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi all, After a long week of hearing dealers tell me it would be a month before I saw CH3's I stumbled across some info that I hope will help future and present Pi builders. Most peavey dealers are on an musical Instrument merchandising plan with peavey. they operate on a 30 day rotation. Architectural (the guys who do recording studios, etc.) vendors order as needed and In my case the parts arrive from peavey in 3 days. Nice, huh? So, If you look up dealers in your area ask them what kind of dealer they are. Also, the fellow I ordered through said he would be happy to figure out shipping for these and handle your requests. If you live near North Carolina I strongly suggest Bass (like the fish) Music Enterprises in Raleigh, (919) 859-3511. He was very Knowledgeable and helpfull. [plus he knows about Pi Speakers :)] If you live far away then the double shipping (to them and then to you) may be just as bad as other choices. Try the architectural dealer trick in your town. Oh yeah, they cost me $34.00 each, not bad. Hope this helps, Thomas