I'd had them done for a few days, I just hadn't had a chance to figure out how to put them on the web. I really just wanted to do something different and visually stunning. You'll definitely never find anything like them in stores. I went and hooked my Yamaha receiver up to them so I could see what it would be like with a little more juice. Now I'm thinking I may have to have a second set of amps for when I want to put on some electronica. This will, of course, all wait until I have the preamp done, but it's a thought. Who's using SS with these? Kevin
