
Subject: good plywood? bad plywood? I'm the plywood with the gun.

Posted by dbeardsl on Wed, 24 Apr 2002 05:46:26 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I cut up a $50 4X8 of veneered Birch today, beautiful on the outside. After the second cut I looked down and the plywood had split, right between the 2nd and 3rd ply, all 48" the ply's just separated about 1" and about 10" making a really tall narrow Y when look at from the side. I did my best to glue and clamp one half. I'm gonna go back to the place I got em from and make em give me another one. The skill saw cutting guide I bought rocked though, I've never had such straight cuts. Question, once I get it all cut and ready, any recommendations for glue? And how about application (brush? sponge? index finger?) (I'm doing 3/8" rabbit joints).