"I think you are overstereotyping car audio people, in fact I know so because I am one of those people." Perhaps I am, but it seems that most car audio enthusiasts care only for volume. And they brag about 140-150 db they produced at the last contest, blowing windows out of cars, etc. I, too, like HIGH END car stereo, it is just that most people have no idea what that really means. I am glad you do. Oh, and on my new car, the same day I made an appointment to have the factory installed junk yanked out, and a nice unit put in. And it doesn't go wooooooommmm wooooooommmm. Let me hear you say, Amen!
