

---

Subject: baffle step

Posted by Adam on Sun, 04 Aug 2002 17:25:40 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

As long as you keep them as close to a wall as you possibly can, this won't be an issue. I personally think baffle step compensation is unnecessary and shouldn't be hardwired into any speakers unless you know they will always be run in half space. Keep them close to a wall and the effect should be negligible. None of Wayne's designs use a baffle step compensation circuit. Adam

---