I once built a complete kitchen on one of those $169 SkilSAw table saws. There's always a way to adjust or at least cheat a straight cut. Quickest fix is to take a known straight board and clamp it right to the table front and rear with c-clamps aligned with the blade. Major PITA moving it for every cut but the job gets done. And yeah, busy Home DEpots only want to cut down panels so they'll fit in your truck or car; the $1 is to discourage Martha Stewart wannabees from 20 cut planters and of course, us speaker builders. 'Course, Martha will soon be raking the sand traps at Lackland AFB. DON'T fuck with the SEC!
