I kinda like the looks of the speakers "in the buff," but attractive grilles are cool too. We used to make grilles available that were made from wicker stretched over a frame, but they were very expensive and so we stopped having them made. Another good idea is to put velcro in the four corners on the front baffle and attach a foam grille - You can cut it to size pretty much anything. Thomas uses the mesh grilles too, and I've always liked that option. Frankly, the most attractive grilles I've seen in a long time are those made by some of the regulars here.Here are a couple
