
Subject: Re: Amusing

Posted by Anonymous on Thu, 31 Oct 2002 13:36:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

He's been doing this challenge for a long time, even writing checks to amplifier vendors IF they can prove that their amplifiers have a sonic difference to any other brand, if they can prove, he would buy their stuff for this studio. So far, nobody has won the challenge. After reading all this (which is new to me), his debate is... a watt is a watt and all an amplifier does is amplify... BUT, he does admit that amplifiers do sound different, but to prove "a watt is a watt" he creates those esoteric conditions - hehe I don't know but most people DO buy amplifiers because of those "little things" that give it personality. His forum is right here; http://www.carsound.com/cgi-bin/UBB_CGI/ultimatebb.cgi Richard Clark is a long time car audio celebrity and winner of many car audio competitions. Audio IS fun stuff and I know Richard is having fun with this testing 1000's of people. Even if 100 people got it correct, he would still be doing the challenge since 100 is minority - hehe $100 - $300 to take the test.