Subject: Anyone using bigger Pis for home theatre?
Posted by DRC on Fri, 23 May 2003 17:59:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I just played the soundtrack to "The Thin Red Line" on my TAD/JBL 'phile 7's. I've never seen the movie, never heard the soundtrack before, and just scared myself half to death. Good grief! . It's like a top notch movie theatre, only better. And this with 9 watts/channel, two front channels only. I've gotta get a projector and screen or large flat screen in this place. Holy smokes! No more megaplex for me, man. Who's bringin' the popcorn?And this followed 8 hours of happily listening to music of all sorts on the same system. (It's not the big rig, either. I haven't collected the rest of the pieces from Steve C's yet!)Please tell me other people have tried this. Unreal.

Keep your ears and your mind open.