Hey guys, I thought I'd let everyone know that I scored a nice new job installing high end home theatre systems (upwards of $25,000-$30,000 dollars) and I start tomorrow morning!!! Seems like all the months of calling them really paid off :P I'm starting off part time and slowly working up to full time, I'll ultimately be out on my own for everything except the really big jobs, with my own vehicle, doing in house setups. I think it's gonna be a lot of fun and it's really going to expand my knowledge of home theatre.Having said that, I hope I can rely on some of you more experienced HT guys for some advice and whatnot... I am very knowledgable about car audio and I know how to build a great set of home speakers, but when it comes to practical knowledge of home video systems, as well as hooking up a lot of this higher end equipment, I still have much to learn... So I hope I can rely on you guys to help me out :PAnyway, just thought I'd spread the good news. It's nice to be doing something I love and getting paid for it, without having to worry about the extra headaches of running one's own business.Adam
