
Subject: I need some advice from the experts.

Posted by Justus Johnston on Wed, 08 Oct 2003 21:20:38 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I just received a pair of quality speakers, and am now trying to sell them. While I am something of a novice home audio buff, I know next to nothing about speakers of this caliber. I'm selling the pair off in an auction, but I thought I'd get some advice since some of you seem to know what you're talking about. Please look at my auction! What I'd like to know is: is there any information I ought to add to the item description, and more importantly, is the price good? I mean, can I reasonably expect to sell the pair for that price? I did my homework on the speakers, and discovered that they retail for about $1200 apiece, so I figured $2000 for the pair should be a good buy (esp. with thrown in shipping). What do you guys think?
<http://cgi.ebay.com/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=3051969960>
