Hi guys, this is a post I put on the Bottlehead forum but I wanted to be sure to get opinions from Wayne and any other Pi folks: "I believe this is attributed to Jon Risch. I had been running my Pi Theater 4s bi-wired which I thought was superior to the X-over wired together. The "mod" is to join just the grounds of the different drivers and leave the positive leads separate. I heard significantly more coherent sound with more realistic and powerful dynamics. Downside is a bit more blurring of the outlines of each sound; but this seems to be an overall better musical presentation. I'd like to hear others' opinions on this technique." Thanks! G.
