I'm with you on the new units. They are cool and all, but I probably won't put any of them to use. Their new products are all solutions to problems I don't have. The small array driver may be useful, and the new tweeter is probably great above 3kHz. But these just aren't things I'm looking for right now. About the shorting ring - I think the only motors that Eminence is using those in are the Magnums.
