Not in order of impotence, I might add. And no, the Foreplay didn't lead to the baby. At least not directly. Here's what happened: I bought a Digital Multimeter about five months ago in anticipation of getting the Bottlehead Foreplay kit. I met this very beautiful young woman not long after. This particular young lady told me she had a broken clothes dryer. Thinking of my new DDM, I said I would come over and take a look at it. With the help of my new DMM, I traced the problem to a broken heating element. Dryer fixed. That led to a few dates, which led to ... a baby due on Aug. 17. I won't know the sex of the baby until April Fools Day. However, I am already searching for names. Any suggestions would be appreciated greatly. How about: Theater Four Becker?or300b Becker?perhapsD.I.Y. Becker?P.S. Wayne, I should get my tax return in the next few days. That means the second Theater 4 kit. It sucks having just one speaker. Even if it is a GREAT sounding speaker.
