Your English is excellent, and it's good to see you here. What I've done is really just to commission Eminence to build a flux-stabilized version of the LAB12, which we've tentatively called the MAG12. There aren't many low Fs subwoofers out there with flux stabilization, and I always thought it was a shame that the LAB12 didn't incorporate a flux control ring. So we decided to make that happen. You can put the MAG12 in a 50 to 150 liter ported cabinet, a large sealed cabinet, a bandpass box or a horn.
