For the longest time, it seemed like I couldn't find anyone in Oklahoma interested in high-end sound clubs/events locally. As it turns out there were individuals here and there, but no one knew of each other so we were all sort of isolated. There's local mid-fi and a few hi-fi stores, and lots of car audio shops. Summertime brings block party gatherings where folks sell hundred-dollar car subwoofers and junk like that. But we never had any high-end audio gatherings around here until about a year ago. Now we have a pretty good little group going.I expect it will come together in Wisconsin soon too. Just keep posting. You're close to Illinois and just across the lake from Ontario, so I suspect there is some interest fairly close by. I know there's activity in Chicago which is pretty close, so you can probably combine some efforts. Visit some of their gatherings and maybe you can entice some of them in coming to an event in Green Bay.
