Bummer that I had to miss this one (I was on babysitting duty while Janet finished a half ironman in KC this weekend, 3rd place in her age group!) Link's system looks fantastic. I'd love to hear those horns. I also second your comments about the scenery out there in western OK - if you keep going west out of Woodward it just gets better and better. It starts to look like a mini-grand canyon out there at black mesa. Next time I'm through there I'll have to try to set up a private listening session. Thanks for the post - and for God's sake get some sunscreen!
