I think your guitar speaker is a great idea. Seems like guitarists and bass players have been left to their own devices, rather than engineers jumping in and making something for them. The thing is, I think they also like to set their "sound" by choosing drivers, so it's kind of like picking a flavor for them. That particular aspect is one that cannot be engineered. But to make a neutral speaker for acoustic and "natural sound" guitars is something I think would be good.
