I recall someone mentioning that the Studio 1s would be good as car speakers. I have been looking to replace the stock rear 6x9s on the hat shelf of my Honda Accord and was thinking about maybe trying Studio 1's. I have a couple of questions: Will the sloping glass of the rear window act as a corner horn to augment bass response and, if so, by how much? I don't want the bass to overwhelm the balance of the system (no EQ)...and: how will the 8 ohm impedance effect the performance of the car system designed around the 4 ohm standard? Thanks for anyone's help! Garland
