that's for darn sure! I think I'd better work with what's in there already for starters though.It turns out the amp section of my head unit is either on front and rear or off. So I'll need an amp for the front pair in order to shut the internal amp down and use the Butler to drive the back pair. Once I get that settled, I'll contemplate using a passive xo to shunt bass to something bigger than 5 1/4 in the (way) rear. That's where the Alpha 10's might come in.
