While we're on the subject, do we have anyone willing to snap photos of equipment and people, taking notes of what's displayed in each room? I like to make a series of posts that show equipment and list what's there each year. It's getting harder to do each year though, especially now that Eddie is 18 months old. Kinda have my hands full.The E-Zines usually do some sort of write-up, but I really like to keep track of what's there and have some photos too. I'll provide the camera and upload the pictures after the show, but need someone that can commit to being there, visiting each room, taking some photos and writing down the model numbers of the equipment on display. Please contact me if you're interested.
