Subject: Re: OS Waveguides to match 12"
Posted by Wayne Parham on Thu, 29 Sep 2005 04:14:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

One would be sure of pattern control if the mouth circumference were made at least one wavelength of the lowest frequency used. If this isn't possible, some compromise might be in order. The radiating angle set by environmental boundaries might help, depending on the frequencies involved and the distance to the boundaries.