Hey Guys!! I hope eveyone's having a great Thanksgiving with their families.I am a college student as well as a Part time sound engineer.I have a custom-built JBL sound system that requires tri-amping with an external electronic crossover. I've been looking all over for a good amp that packs plenty of power, and at the same time, is affordable enough to buy 3 or 4 units to get the speakers powered up.I am deeply troubled because I have stumbled upon the Berhringer EP 2500 power amplifire (500wx2@8ohms, 750wx2@4ohms, 1200wx2@2ohms). It seems very powerful and affordable too. I'm tempted to buy it, but i want to make sure that it would be a good investment to have my sound company start out with. I just want to know what your opinions are as far as this amp goes.Thanks in advance!-Don
