Don't get me wrong, I didn't think the Dream Makers sounded bad. They sounded good to me. Overall they are very balanced and pleasing to listen to. The slight bass hangover was the woofers I think. It wasn't the material because I listened to two songs and walked by the room a few more times and heard the same signature sound. Everybody there has the same room, so I don't think it was that. The bass was just a little too bloomed for my ears thats all.
