Subject: Re: Speakers for my father in-law
Posted by Matts on Fri, 30 Dec 2005 13:35:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

also, cabs would still be heavy, much larger box, and more expensive to ship. Most carriers have a large surcharge if the dimensions of a package exceed a certain number, which most cabs would. If you buy the wood locally (closer to Baltic ply that we in USA are), and build the cabs yourself, or pay a local carpenter/cabinet maker to do it, and buy the parts kit from Wayne these speakers are quite a bargain besides sounding great.