Subject: Re: No offense, Matts, but
Posted by Manualblock on Mon, 06 Mar 2006 15:43:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Naah; it's not you; your post would be too obvious and anyway it has the ring of truth. It's something other than a specific charge or post. Its a thing we are beginning to see where there are literally dozens of websites popping up presenting themselves as audio hobby forums then in reality providing an outlet for supposedly citizen posters to flog their wares. Not here becuase the Pi site is older and more established. But you see the same posters leapfrogging sites with all these bits of info geared to direct attention to something inparticular. Then sites that used to present themselves as hobbiest sites offer tons of stuff for sale.