Wayne, what is your take on my carpet padding? Might that be damping the impact of drum strikes? You may recall that I had felt that the Studio 2s I had made for a friend was better on rock than my Theater 4s though the 4s were more refined sounding. I worry that this difference may be showing a problem I might be having in the drum strike impulse response(?). I may just rip out the padding just to see but I imagine it's not going to be easy to re-line the cabinet through the woofer hole. Thanks for any suggestions. Garland
