Services are Friday. He will be missed.Less than a year ago, Brad was doing just fine. Thanksgiving was normal but just after, he complained of a cold that seemed to keep him down. Some of our orders had to be delayed, I even turned away some business. By Christmas, he finally had decided this wasn't just a month-long hanging on flu or something, and he went into the hospital. They diagnosed him with cancer and while he fought it bravely, it took him fast.
