Things on the home front have let up a little. I've finally had some time to work on a project I started collecting parts for several years ago. I'm building Eric Barbour's SV811 amp. I was drawn to this schematic for its simplicity. I'm still very new to building and would like some assistance along the way. I've built the chassis and drilled the top plates, which are 12x24". The top plates will be going to the powder coater on Tuesday. I'll post pictures when I get them back.....C
