

---

Subject: Re: brekaing in... seriously?

Posted by roland on Fri, 04 Aug 2006 20:40:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I am running a SET 2a3 in my office where they were assembled. I also have an old technichs amplifier (lol - was very impressed 15 years ago by the MOSFET logo:..) in the living room where the speakers will go. I have a feeling the my 2a3 SET will be shy on the bass anyways, I have small but nice audio note transformers. Nothing wrong with the midrange though..and I am not a bass freak. My plan is either to get a PP 2a3 setup (DIY - the SETH looks interesting as does Lynn O's stuff) or build a decent tube preamp + get a solid state amplifier. and you? Parafeed or series feed? Are you happy with your setup? Roland

---