Any recommendations on quality computer audio (on the cheap)? I thought about building a pair of small FE-103E based monitors, but I'm not sure I want to wait until I can build them (since I would also have to build an amp). Plus, Fostex doesn't provide much bass unless horn loaded. So then I thought I'd just pick something up from Best Buy, but their stuff is all so cheap and cheesy (ironically enough, JBL is the cheesiest). I may ultimately do a pair of Fostex based monitors powered by a chip-amp, but I wanted to get some opinions from the peanut gallery (that's you guys) first. Any suggestions? Oh, < $100.
