The offer is much appreciated, but I won't have a PC available until the computer doctor finishes his unholy grafting of the two systems. He's being a bit stubborn about trying to making it work, so it's taking way more time than I thought. Where can I find this AutoCAD thingy? If & when finished, Frankenputer will have basic internet capabilities for downloads, and maybe enough left-over memory for software like AutoCAD and/or Rhino plus related files. I'm all excited, like a kid the week before Christmas, about throwing HornResp a few curve balls!
