Thanks Shane, OK I got the idea I was thinking making all the cuts in 45 degrees that way the plywood edges aren't going to be exposed, did you use veneers to cover the edges of the plywood ? one question how did you place the insulation and if you use screws or finishing nails, what kind of wood do you use to make the crosses, it looks to me like a piece of 1 x 14 cut with the jigsaw I was thinking to put the braces all along the inside corners of the box and use carpenter's glue in all the joints when finished with the box is going to be tight as cows ????? during fly season lol!! please let me know if I'm correct.. Thanks Mario
