There are many Tweeters better than that. It all depends what you want it for, ...PA, monitor? ...as an example, or dispersion pattern? or price? (I hope Wayne doesn't read this, because when he choose it, it was one of the best and he was changing from a piezo that was not that bad)The DX25 gives 90dB at 40K. No other speaker does that -- with out you paying X10 times more. You will have to pay the difference and design a new xover for a new speaker don't forget that. Did this help in any way?
