A couple more woofers! Doesn't that also mean another amp and some form of filtering, with all the associated problems with balancing the relative output? I could accommodate two more boxes (and probably not too different from the cost of some room treatment) but not too sure about wanting another amp to drive them! The speakers are still getting better by the day and I've just had a musician friend round who was thrilled by the sound. I still aim to put together a bass resonator (should have enough material in stock as it were) and maybe look to some foam bass traps for the corners a little later. Paul
