Subject: Vibration damping
Posted by Wayne Parham on Thu, 25 Sep 2008 17:43:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I like to use a gasket underneath the crossover PCB, then bolt it down tight to the cabinet. I suppose a person could isolate the PCB, perhaps suspending it on string or encasing it in a viscous material. But fastening the crossover board with a gasket is simple and prevents the board from vibrating against anything that would cause it to buzz.Gaskets