Ok, I was mistaken on when you did work for them but I also had Speakerlab product in the 70's and that takes me back as well. At that time and well into the 80's I felt good if I could just get through the physical assembly of components and pre-assembled crossover. Since I currently have a question in here on Voigt pipes I'd also like to open up a dialog on your Bigger Is Better project shown at Full Range. I'll review what is there before continuing with that. Oops. Is anything even _in_ archive since James changed over to the new format?
