Thanks Wayne. This will be a dedicated listening room. This was part of the requirement for any house we got--that there would be an extra bedroom, room, officespace for my stereo and guitar equipment. My guitar amps and such will be along the "back" wall by the door, with the listening spot in front of that. The room is very hollow sounding being just a vinyl tile floor and sheetrock. I was thinking in the interim to get a good sized floor rug to put down between the chair and the speakers. There will be some artwork on the walls--mainly to inspire the guitarist in me. I thought about adding some flat panels, say 2' x 4' that have cloth covered batting, as needed to reflections.
